40th Annual Art Auction

CALL FOR ARTWORK

Online Art Auction | November 2 – 7, 2020 | aggp.ca

DONOR RULES AND REGULATIONS

This document outlines the rules and regulations governing artists and/or collectors who generously submitted work for consideration in the art auction, and whose work was chosen for inclusion in the auction. By checking the box in the Application form which stipulates that the Donor (or Artist) 'agrees to abide by the Rules and Regulations as provided by the Art Gallery of Grande Prairie,' you are agreeing to following these regulations.

Application Form and Deadlines

How to make a donation:

1. The Donor Form. This is a fillable PDF that you can easily populate and email to us. Alternately, you can fill it out and drop the Form off.
2. Include an image. Artists and donors should also include a JPEG, EPS or other image file of any work. DO NOT bring artwork to the Gallery, as we only accept images of potential donations.

You can make as many submissions as you'd like, each requiring a new Donor Form. It's most likely that if the Gallery selects your work for inclusion in the art auction, that it would be just 1 piece. Donations of art can be in any style.

Application deadline: August 15th, 2020

Decisions on auction pieces: August 30th, 2020

Work delivered to Art Gallery of Grande Prairie: By October 5th , 2020

40th Annual Art Auction event: NOVEMBER 2nd – 7th, 2020

Making decisions on donations

The Gallery is proud to maintain an open call for submissions for the auction. While many galleries select the participating artists without a submission, we maintain that the open call provides opportunities for artists to showcase their work and to show support for their gallery. We are also humbled that so many people in our community wish to support us!

Unfortunately, we receive far more submissions of art and experiences than we can auction, even in an online format. We take pride in promoting artists and their work, which, this year, will include showcasing it at the gallery to our visitors. This makes for an obvious necessity to limit how many pieces we auction. Therefore, the Gallery Executive Director, the Curators, and members of both the Board of Directors and the community, make decisions on which art pieces and experiences to include based on the possible value of the piece, the artist or donor's relationship with the Gallery and its contribution to our principles for inclusivity and expressing diversity.

Remuneration / Compensation

We sincerely value the work and generosity of those who are supporting our auction by donating artwork and experiences.

Artists can select from two options for remuneration;

- Receive a charitable tax receipt for 100% of the Fair Market Value

OR

- Receive a consignment payment of 25% of the selling price of the work at the auction

Fair Market Value is the amount that you could sell the artwork for in Canada in November 2020 to a willing buyer who is familiar with the art market. The best indicator of the fair market value of an artwork is the amount you have sold similar artworks for in the recent past. It's important for the Gallery's fiduciary responsibility that the fair market value be as accurate as possible. If you've not sold work commercially or to a public institution, we recommend a lower figure be attributed to the work.

In keeping with practices established by the Canada Revenue Agency, for works valued over $1,000, and at the Gallery's discretion, you may have to provide sales receipts or an independent appraisal of similar and recent work to support the fair market value.

Consignment payments will be provided within 60 days of the Auction. Tax receipts will be provided before the end of the calendar year.

Reserve Bid Value is a hidden minimum price that the seller is willing to accept for an item. In a Reserve Price auction, the seller is only obligated to sell the item once the bid amount meets or exceeds the Reserve Price. We have a reserve bid in place this year as the 40th Annual Auction will be an online experience. If the piece doesn't meet the reserve bid amount, it is returned to the owner.

Getting work to the Gallery

Artworks that are selected for the auction must arrive at the Gallery on or before October 5th, 2020. Any work not at the Gallery by this time without prior written approval (see contact info below) may, unfortunately, be removed from participating in the event.

Shipping or transportation of the work to the Gallery is the responsibility of the Donor. All two-dimensional artworks must be appropriately framed and ready to hang. All three-dimensional artworks must have proper supports, hanging devices, and, if required, instructions for installation. The Gallery will not be responsible for artworks framed or mounted in an unstable manner. Upon receipt of the actual artwork, the Gallery reserves the right to disqualify artwork that was not adequately represented in the submission or suitably prepared for display. The Art Gallery of Grande Prairie insures all artworks on its premises. You will be responsible for insuring artwork in transit to the gallery.
